News and Updates

Random Pictures: As I mentioned on the back side of this newsletter, I forgot to take pictures this week so I just threw in some classics. If teaching and being a student doesn't work out for Maggie, Ava, and me, we plan on taking up modeling with these dynamite faces.

Religion: In order to finish on time, we had four lessons this week. In our first lesson, God delivered Hezekiah and his kingdom from an Assyrian invasion by destroying the Assyrian army. In our second lesson, God answered Hezekiah's prayer by healing him and adding 15 years to his life. In our third lesson, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego refused to sin and boldly confessed their faith in the true God. And in our fourth lesson, when King Belshazzar mocked God, Daniel pointed out the king's sin and announced God's judgment.

English: We worked through steps 4-10 for our research reports this week. The reports will be due on Wednesday. The students are working hard on them and doing it rather quietly too. I look forward to reading them!

Reading: The Wind in the Willows: Week 3 of Literature Circles was as uneventful as it gets and I'm OK with that. Although, I did have a strange giggle fit while I was trying to read a chapter. You know, the Reminders...

- As you already know, Track & Field day was rescheduled for next week Friday. It will still be held at the high school track. We will be taking a bus over to the track at 9:00. The meet will start ASAP. If you plan on attending, you'll want to bring a lawn chair, shade tent, sunscreen, water, and a cold lunch. The schedule of events can be found on our website under "Athletics". The bus comes to pick us up at 2:30 so we'll have to wrap things up before then.
- Check with your child every other night about their Literature Circle role. Make sure they are ready for discussion.
- PreK-8 sing on Graduation Sunday - June 5
- Stay strong to the end!

kind where you're in a situation and can't stop thinking about something that is making you laugh but you aren't suppose to be laughing or making noise...which only makes you laugh harder - like in church, during a sermon. It was kind of like that.

Math: The 5th graders used zero as a placeholder, divided decimal numbers by decimal numbers, and multiplied mixed numbers. The 6th graders estimated area, found a whole of something when fractions and percents were known, and calculated the volume of a cylinder.

Social Studies: Again, I was very pleased with their work on the West! They are doing a great job with these U.S. map tests! Next week we head to the Northeast. This region is typically the most difficult of the four.

Science: We are going through some of the supplementary materials in the back of the book for the next couple weeks. Right now we are focusing on the "Health Handbook". It is a quick reference to the many different systems of the body. This week we studied the skeletal and muscular systems.

Picture Caption: I didn't take any pictures this week, so here are some goodies but oldies!
